CAN THE TRIBES SAVE OUR FUTURE?

Global warming is threatening the existence of our planet, but politicians and the older generations have failed to act. Kids and teenagers around the world started a revolution. It's their fight for their future!

But is anybody listening?

The harsh reality is that we keep polluting and pushing new record levels of CO₂ in the atmosphere.

Realizing that change has to start from within, teenagers want to teach their family a valuable lesson. They challenge their parents and siblings with a shocking reality check: they take them to stay with a tribe that has been living in harmony with nature for centuries, with nearly a zero carbon footprint.

The families will be confronted with their own prejudices and live a life they could never have imagined. Long held values and habits will be challenged and changed.

But the most important question is: will the families take home what they learned from the tribes and start living an eco-conscious lifestyle? Will they manage to reduce their carbon footprint?
